Professional Identity in Nursing is "a sense of oneself, and in relationship with others, that is influenced by characteristics, norms, and values of the nursing discipline, resulting in an individual thinking, acting, and feeling like a nurse."

Register now for the Professional Identity in Nursing: Think Tank 2019

This is an invitation-only event that will build upon the work of the first Think Tank held in 2018, bringing together leaders in education, regulation, and practice from the US and Canada to understand and operationalize professional identity and professional identity formation.

Continuing nursing education credit will be available; more information to follow as we finalize the agenda.
